Bethel Presbyterian Church

August 31, 2008

On September 8 at noon, First Presbyterian Church of Knoxville is hosting a presbytery lunch with Amy Pauw, theologian and seminary professor at Louisville Seminary. Her theme will be "African Theology for North American Pastors." Dr. Pauw is an engaging theologian committed to the ministry of Christ in the church. Come for both the stimulating discussion of faith and the fellowship with other church leaders. Email alyssa@fpcknox.org or call the church (865-546-2531) so that there can be an accurate count for lunch.

New Sunday School starting next Sunday, September 7th, I will be teaching a Sunday School class geared toward younger adults and adults with small children. This class is open to anyone but the target will be 20's and 30's and early 40's. The class will meet in the Annex so that those with children can be near children's classes. The class will decide on a study and the class format will be discussion based. Feel free to call me with any questions. My home number is 376.8878; cell 388.4511; work 376.9476, email rick_ross@bellsouth.net. I look forward to seeing you next Sunday, September 7th.
